【33-35】

Matt has a sweet tooth. He loves candy and cookies. They may not be good for his body, but he just can't say no to them. He wants to eat sweets every day. What will happen to him? Well, maybe it's not just him--it's his brain.

With sugar in people's bodies, their brains make dopamine. Dopamine creates happy feelings, but it is not there for long. It fades away, so the brain wants more. It's just like it says, "You want good feelings; you need sugar." Then people have sweet food again. After some time, the brain loves sugar too much. From a small slice of cake to a big bag of candy, they can't get enough.
