A School Walks to a New Place

Engineers in Shanghai, China, wanted to move a school to a new place because builders wanted to build a tall shopping mall in the same place.

The school was 85 years old and engineers did not want to destroy it. It was a difficult job for them. Engineers put more than 200 robot legs under the school. The legs moved up and down the building and they also turned around. It looked like the school was walking. It walked 62 meters. The school was very heavy, so it took 18 days to move the school.

In the end, Engineers were happy. It was not easy, but they did it well. It was the first time for them to move a building with the help of robot legs.
