Girls at the Piano

Girls at the Piano is a painting by Pierre Auguste Renoir. In this painting, there are two young girls in a bedroom. A piano with a pot of flowers are also in the room. The two young girls both have long hair, but their dresses are in different colors. One girl in a white dress is playing the piano, and the other girl in an orange dress is standing beside her. It looks like that they are practicing and exchanging their ideas about how to play the song.

Renoir is good at using bright colors and the changes of lights in his works of art. He is also good at drawing pictures of people. Girls at the Piano is one of his famous painting with these features.
