(11-12)

Mistletoe is a plant. It is very common at Christams. By tradition, when two people meet under the mistletoe, they can kiss each other. The tradition came from an old story.

A long time ago, Balder, the god of light, dreamed he would be killed. Frigg, Balder's mother, worried about him a lot. She asked everything in the world to promise not to hurt Balder. However, she forgot about mistletoe.

Later, the god Loki knew about that. He didn't like Balder and wanted to find out if mistletoe could hurt Balder. Loki tricked Hoder, Balder's blind brother, into shooting somewhere with mistletoe. Poor Hoder was blind; he didn't know Loki was asking him to shoot his brother. The mistletoe went through Balder's heart. Balder was dead and the world soon became dark.

Frigg was very sad. She asked every god to help her and tried to find a way to bring Balder back to life. Finally, some gods saved Balder. Frigg was happy and thankful. To show her thanks, she made a promise people under mistletoe could kiss each other. This has become a tradition at Christmas.
